PLAYBOY'S BOOK OF LINGERIE

PLAYBOY PRESS

Before you write, fax, call or e-mail to tell us that this photograph was never published in a Book of Lingerie, we'll confess that we don't care. What we present is a soothing, sexy image that evokes a peaceful simplicity for your eyes to gaze upon. Because for the next 92 pages you'll get dizzying, nonstop, heart-pounding excitement that could be a strain on your blood pressure and optical nerves. The Surgeon General advises returning to this page on occasion to avoid system overload.

PLAYBOY'S BOOK OF LINGERIE.

10 YEARS
OF SEXUAL ENLIGHTENMENT

QUINTESSENTIAL
LINGERIE AND THEIR MODELS

May 1984

It doesn't take a rocket scientist to figure out that men like to see women in sexy lingerie. PLAYBOY saw a need and filled it by publishing the first Book of Lingerie in 1984. But despite selling more than 300,000 copies, it was nearly three years before we got around to issuing another.

July/August 1989

In publishing circles, certain magazines, such as the Newsstand Specials, are referred to as "Flats." But damned if we knew why. Turns out that at one point monthly magazines were displayed upright on a rack and all others on a flat shelf underneath. Hence, Flats.

It can strain a writer's creative mind thinking up ever newer ways to describe lingerie, but we think the most unusual, if not downright goofiest, has to have been "intrinsically exhibitionistic." What were we thinking?

Cover girl Lisa Boyle's groundbreaking body piercing drew a few raspberries, but not enough to prevent her from finishing in the top 20 of our Readers' Choice poll. She has fans in Hollywood, too, where she's just completed a pilot for a TV drama series.

Arny Freytag's shot of Jenny McCarthy was just too good to limit to the front cover, so we wrapped it around the back, too—a BOL first. Jenny's star status also earned her the honor of cover name identification—another first.

In honor of her Readers' Choice win, Ms. Ford was the second model to get her name on the cover. With this issue we counted more than 1000 models photographed, 2345 separate shootings and nearly 47,000 rolls of film exposed to assemble the first 50 BOLs.
